Announcement

Qualifying Examination for Academic Year 2021

for Ph.D. Applied Biological Sciences: Environmental Health, Environmental Toxicology and Chemical Sciences (Chemical Biology Track) Students

GENERAL RULES (according to the student guideline)

1. A Ph.D. student must take his/her Ph.D. qualifying examinations in his/her fourth semester at the latest. Students who fail their qualifying examinations will be required to retake the exams. Students are eligible to take the qualifying examination only twice; those who fail will be dismissed from the doctoral program.

2. Ph.D. qualifying examinations are conducted entirely in English.

3. The qualifying examinations may include a written and/or oral examination.

4. Eligibility requirements for the qualifying examinations:

- Ph.D. students must complete all compulsory courses and follow the announcements set out by their respective Program Management Committee (if required).
- Master's students who wish to transfer to a Ph.D. degree program can do so via one of the following pathways:

Pathway 1, students must have completed research work, which can be further developed into a Ph.D. thesis. Additionally, they must have been approved by their respective Program Management Committee and have notified the Division of Academic Support.

Pathway 2, students must enroll for at least 2 semesters and have completed all compulsory courses with a cumulative GPA (i.e., GPAX) of not less than 3.50 or have been approved for eligibility by the Program Management Committee.

5. The time, dates and venues of the qualifying examinations will be announced annually.

For Academic Year 2021:

The qualifying examination will consist of only a fundamental examination, which covers materials from the following courses.

0102501 (CGAB501) Principles of Applied Biosciences: Systems Biology

0102502 (CGAB502) Experimental Strategies for Biological Problems

PASS/FAIL CRITERIA

A student must obtain a score of at least 60% to pass the fundamental examination.
